STUDENT RABBI'S REPORT

Last week, as we read the story of Noah, I was struck by all the birds. Four times Noah sends out birds to access whether the flood waters had receded. It feels like every day, I find myself sending out little birds, tiny hopes and concerns for the future, emails to ask after the health of family, prayers to end the pandemic. Last week, I sent out what feels like the holiest dove of them all, my absentee ballot. I send out these tiny missives with anxiety. It is scary to hope and the prospect of failure is terrifying. If you too find yourself anxious in this moment, about your health, about the election, about the state of our world, please know that I am here to talk.

I find myself particularly stuck on the story of Noah's first dove explorer. When the dove came back, without an olive branch, with no sign of a dryer world to come, the Torah relates that Noah reached out his hand and drew the bird in. With the bird cradled in his arms, Noah walked back into his ark. May we have the gentleness and courage to cradle our failed hopes, to nurse those little doves until they can fly again.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

As I commented in my remarks on Yom Kippur, we may all manifest the Jewishness in our lives differently but it is so important to have a place where we all come together to interact and let our Jewishness rub off on each other. Shaaray Tefila is that Jewish public square, that cauldron where it all comes together Jewishly for us. The pandemic has created obstacles to that togetherness, but I am proud that we are all working to overcome those obstacles, whether through live services with social distancing, through virtual services and events or individual interactions with each other on a daily basis. Regardless of how you would like to “do Jewish,” I encourage you to think of how you can make Shaaray Tefila a part of your Jewish life.

Thank you to everyone who made donations and paid dues over the last few months.

Regarding our weekly Zoom services with Joey Glick, with the decreasing hours of daylight, we will be switching from Friday evening Kabbalat Shabbat to Saturday evening Havdallah at 7PM as of the weekend of November 7. This will allow us to continue making sure that we are inclusive of congregants with all ranges of observance. In addition, it will take away some of the time pressure from those of us who would like to enjoy a relaxed Shabbat dinner on Friday evenings.

I would like to express my condolences to Francine Torra and family on the passing of her beloved aunt, Lilyan Silverman.

TSRS - TEMPLE-SYNAGOGUE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL REPORT

I am so happy that our beloved Religious School has continued momentum while on Zoom. TSRS is my heart and soul. I love the kids dearly! We will remain on Zoom until it is deemed safe to get back together in the building. We are excited to welcome Shaaray Tefilah Student Rabbi Joey Glick to our TSRS staff this year. He will join us in keeping our students excited about learning along with our other wonderful teachers.

We have created a targeted and specific program for our youngest students which will occur before the older students join us in the morning. This new program will focus on their specific needs of Jewish learning. We are making sure our Family Services on Zoom give everyone the feeling of togetherness and we are continuing to bring the holidays to life through interactive programming online.

We will continue to explore Israeli culture and history, Jewish values and Hebrew while adding programs that cover our “name story,” with a focus on our Hebrew names. We will explore our homes for Jewish family treasures and share them with our school in a program that I credit learning about through my experience at New CAJE Jewish Educators Conference and a wonderful storyteller and teacher Cherie-Karo Schwartz. We will also create our own TSRS “person” and take them through each part of the Jewish life Cycle.

These programs and much more are what you will be hearing about throughout the TSRS year. Whether online, in-person, or both, our Temple-Synagogue Religious School will continue to thrive!

NOVEMBER 2020

November Greetings Everyone,

Continued healing thoughts and prayers to members, family and friends of Sisterhood.

On behalf of Sisterhood, condolences and love to the Silverman and Torra families on the passing of Lilyan Silverman, aunt, great-aunt, great-great-aunt, cousin and friend. Francine was devoted to her Aunt Lilyan and also visited whenever possible during COVID restrictions. Francine's brother Donald Silverman shared wonderful memories of his and Francine's special visits over the years with their aunt at the funeral via long distance (phone).

Thank you for your Sisterhood dues and donations. The dues' deadline has been extended to Monday, November 30th. Again thank you for your continued support.

Snowbirds stay safe as well as members and past members living in different locations.

Be safe and have a healthy, Happy Thanksgiving!
